Understanding Social Media Networks

▪ Facebook

- Advantages:
 - Private thread conversations – can be useful for engaging support groups
 - Generally less of a professional audience than Twitter
 - Expectations for frequent updates less than Twitter
- Disadvantages:
 - Concerns over privacy issues. There is a need to be mindful that it is the internet, be wary of what is posted openly, especially when dealing with clients
 - Less professional audience, maybe not the best if goal is advocacy/influencing decision makers
 - Increasingly fewer young people on Facebook (the mom effect)

■ Twitter

■ Advantages

- Short, concise messaging.
- Possibility of reaching a wide audience
- Potential to connect with professionals and key decision makers
- Ability to gain local/national/international momentum through the use of hashtags (#) – trending
- Quick access to a breadth of knowledge

■ Disadvantages

- Fitting key messages in 140 characters
- Finding the right people to connect with in a sea of Twitter clients
- Hard to target a specific segment
- For palliative care specifically, it's more professionals than anything else

Social Media Basics

- Before you begin social media ask yourself if you have the time. The difference between using social media and using social media effectively is time.
- Don't need to update daily, but if you want to develop an online presence you need to be active, involved and at least minimally committed. Aim to update once a week.
- Remember, it's better to update less frequently than to post mediocre content.
- When in doubt “retweet” or “share.” This can be a great way to get new “followers” and “likes!”

Twitter

- Create a Twitter account for your organization.
- Pick a username that isn't too long and won't infringe too much on 140 character limit – this is important for retweets.
- Write a short blurb on the purpose of your organization. Be sure to include relevant links to your website to drive traffic.
- We also chose to personalize it, by writing that our Tweets are from Julia and Vanessa

The screenshot shows the Twitter profile page for CHPCA (@CanadianHPCAssn). The profile bio reads: "The national voice for Hospice Palliative Care in Canada, advocating for quality end-of-life/hospice palliative care in Canada. Tweets by Julia and Vanessa! Ottawa, ON <http://chpca.net>". The profile statistics show 449 tweets, 670 following, and 602 followers. The tweets section displays three tweets: a retweet of a video about palliative care, a webinar announcement for October, and a tweet about learning about the palliative approach.

How to Get Started: Courtesy of ehospice

- Find your channel, be it Facebook, Twitter, Linked-in, Pinterest, email, or Google+.
- Make the jump, sign up and observe ('lurk') for a bit.
- Follow a few people, organizations, or themes to start.
- To start with, dedicate a few minutes either once, twice or three times a day to check your channel(s). Don't start by being "on" all the time.
- Think about joining a tweetchat (usually a dedicated hour) where people from all over the globe get together on Twitter to interact and discuss a shared interest.
- Start following and then tweeting from conferences. This can be almost as good as being there!

Twitter: Privacy and who Controls Messaging

- Twitter is not private. Less so than Facebook. Your entire profile and Tweet history can be viewed by everyone.
- Recommend that you assign 1 or 2 people responsible for Tweeting.
 - Keeps consistency of voice
 - Communicating key message
 - If others in organization want to have a message posted, have them send it to the Twitter-ers
 - Make sure people responsible agree to a social media policy and understand that once they Tweet, it is made public forever
 - @ChryslerAutos: “I find it ironic that Detroit is known as the #motorcity and yet no one can $%^&ing drive”
- Handling personal accounts
 - If staff have personal Twitter accounts that they use for work purposes, like to participate in Tweet chats their profile should include a disclaimer.

The screenshot shows a Mozilla Firefox browser window displaying the Twitter profile of Julia Ehrhardt (@Julia_Ehrhardt). The browser's address bar shows the URL https://twitter.com/Julia_Ehrhardt. The profile header includes a profile picture, the name Julia Ehrhardt, the handle @Julia_Ehrhardt, and a bio: "Health Care Fundraising and Communications. Interest in PR, #SM, Communications. Currently working @canadianhpcassn. Tweets are my own." To the right of the bio, there are statistics: 39 TWEETS, 29 FOLLOWING, and 16 FOLLOWERS, along with an "Edit your profile" button. The left sidebar contains navigation options: Tweets, Following, Followers, Favorites, Lists, and Recent images. The main content area shows three tweets by Julia Ehrhardt:

- Tweet 1: 7m ago. Text: "@huffingtonpost power of #sm to bring things together. Car show for terminally ill child. ow.ly/dH1QN". Includes a "View summary" link.
- Tweet 2: 23h ago. Text: "RT @laurawbickle My new Heart Smart Families newsletter for the Heart & Stroke Foundation launches tomorrow! Sign up at bit.ly/ThCV8x". Includes an "Expand" link.
- Tweet 3: 12 Sep. Text: "@cmaer I am not sure, but a good campaign would use multiple".

The Windows taskbar at the bottom shows several open applications: Start, Novell-delivered Applicati..., Novell GroupWise - Sharon, SIRIUS Player - 100% C..., SM presentations - draft..., Microsoft Excel - Sheet..., Julia Ehrhardt (Julia_..., and Document1 - Microsoft ... The system clock in the bottom right corner indicates the time is 2:26 PM.

What is a hashtag?

- A hashtag is a fully searchable link that is used on Twitter
- By inserting it in a Tweet it can create a sense of community, allow multiple users to contribute to a single conversation and/or create momentum around a certain event
- Unsure of which hashtags to use? Follow organizations/individuals with like-minded interests
- Here are a few that the CHPCA uses often
 - #eol (end-of-life)
 - #hpc (hospice palliative care)
 - #hpm (hospice palliative medicine)
 - #caregiving
 - #hcsmdca (health care social media Canada)
 - #eldercarechat

Your Survey Questions

- How do you bridge the gap between being cautious and communicating with your followers? (especially in the case of RNs and others)
 - Stay away from offering medical advice
 - Use it a tool to disseminate changes/updates in policy
 - Promote organizational resources, events
 - Stimulate discussions amongst fellow health care professionals while keeping it “high level” away from individual case studies
- Is there a cost associated with using social media?
 - No cost other than time.
 - At the CHPCA it takes approximately 15-20 minutes per day to update Facebook and Twitter. But more time can be invested to regularly monitor feeds of both.
- Can you use social media as a fundraising tool?
 - Haven’t seen this done successfully as an organization, at least not for solicitation
 - Can be a useful to leverage sponsorship – eg. If you’re company sponsors our event we will share the information on Facebook and Twitter 6 times during the week of the event to our 600 followers

- How do you navigate privacy on Twitter?
 - Celebrities misuse of Twitter
 - @KennethCole: "Millions are in uproar in #Cairo. Rumor is they heard our new spring collection is now available online at <http://bit.ly/KCairo>
 - Kenneth sent this Tweet out following the uprisings in Egypt. He received immediate backlash from his Twitter followers. He apologized and deleted it, but once something is posted on the internet it can't ever really be deleted.
 - @justinbieber: "Call me right now."
 - Justin sent this Tweet to Scott Baio along with a phone number missing one digit. It was read by his 1.5 million followers, 1,000 of whom added a number at random and got a hold of an older Texas couple
- How do you respond to negative comments on a Facebook post?
 - A response is needed unless it's straight up bullying, then delete the post
 - A response is also good practice if it's a positive post or if you see that someone has shared your information

- How do I get more followers and likes?
 - Be sure to imbed “Follow us on Twitter” “Like us on Facebook” icons in your email signatures, through your newsletter system (Constant Contact/Mailchimp), post these links on your webpage as well.
 - Finances permitting, imbed your organization’s Twitter feed on your website.
 - Respond to mentions, share other updates and follow like-minded organizations

The screenshot shows a web browser window displaying the website for the Hospice Care Alliance. The browser's address bar shows the URL 'ehospice.net'. The website has a dark blue navigation menu on the left with the following items: 'The Way Forward >', 'Palliative Care Alliance >', and 'ehospice >'. The main content area features a large banner image of two people talking, with the text 'Speak Up: Start the conversation about end-of-life care.' and a 'Start the Conversation >' button. Below the banner, there are three columns: 'Latest News' with a paragraph about a three-year initiative and a 'Click here to read the full story >' button; 'Tweets' with a tweet from CanadianHPCAssn RT @jenmarsh2; and 'Our Sponsors' featuring the logo for The GlaxoSmithKline Foundation and a 'View all Sponsors | Sponsorship Information' link. The browser's taskbar at the bottom shows several open applications, including 'Novell-delivered Applicati...', 'Novell GroupWise - Mailbox', 'Palliative Care | Hosp...', and 'SM presentations - draft ...'. The system tray shows the time as 11:08 AM.
